27. Fountaineer - Sirens (Part 1 & 2)

Fountaineer / Greater City, Greater Love

26. Peking Duk (feat. AlunaGeorge) - Fake Magic

25. Brand New - Can't Get It Out

After an 8 year wait between albums, Brand New returned out of nowhere with "Science Fiction". The lyrics from this cut take a humorous/sarcastic look at depression with a tune that you could describe as struggling.

24. Royal Blood - Lights Out

The lead single from Royal Blood's album is a banging 4 mins of solid blues rock. Lyrically the song is about trying to get over someone who doesn't love you back, and making it seem easier than it actually is.

23. The Jungle Giants - Used To Be In Love

The second song (in this list) from Jungle Giant's excellent 3rd album is a well crafted banger.

22. Slowly Slowly - Aliens

A little gem found out of nowhere, Slowly Slowly captures the essence of wanting to escape in only a bit over 3 minutes. You get so sad & you get so high; you won't change but you keep on trying.

21. Didirri - Jude

I remember the first time i heard this song. Didirri was opening for Jack River when he described the meaning behind this song, how it was about his depressed friend and (jokingly) about how he screwed up his dog (jude). Then he played the song, and well, there's a good reason it's this high.

20. Death From Above 1979 - Freeze Me

I forgot how i found this song, but after my second or so listen i knew i was glad that i did. With passionate singing and a banging tune, this Canadian rock duo reaches #20 on my top 100 list.

19. Boo Seeka - Does This Last

The lead single from Boo Seeka's debut album dropped in February this year, yet has managed to be high on my list ever since. The Aussie electronic duo deliver a sad, yet chill experience which asks the question "Why does this only last for so long?"

18. Riley Pearce - Misplaced

Why is it still getting me down
You keep your head in the clouds
Taking in many folk influences and crafting them into one beautiful mix,
Riley Pearce crashes his way into the #18 spot.

17. Mount Eerie - Real Death

Warning : SAD SONG

Phil Elverum's opener from his excellent and haunting "A Crow Looked At Me" was created only recently from his wife's death. The song states his struggles with coping and events that has happened since she died. It's Dumb

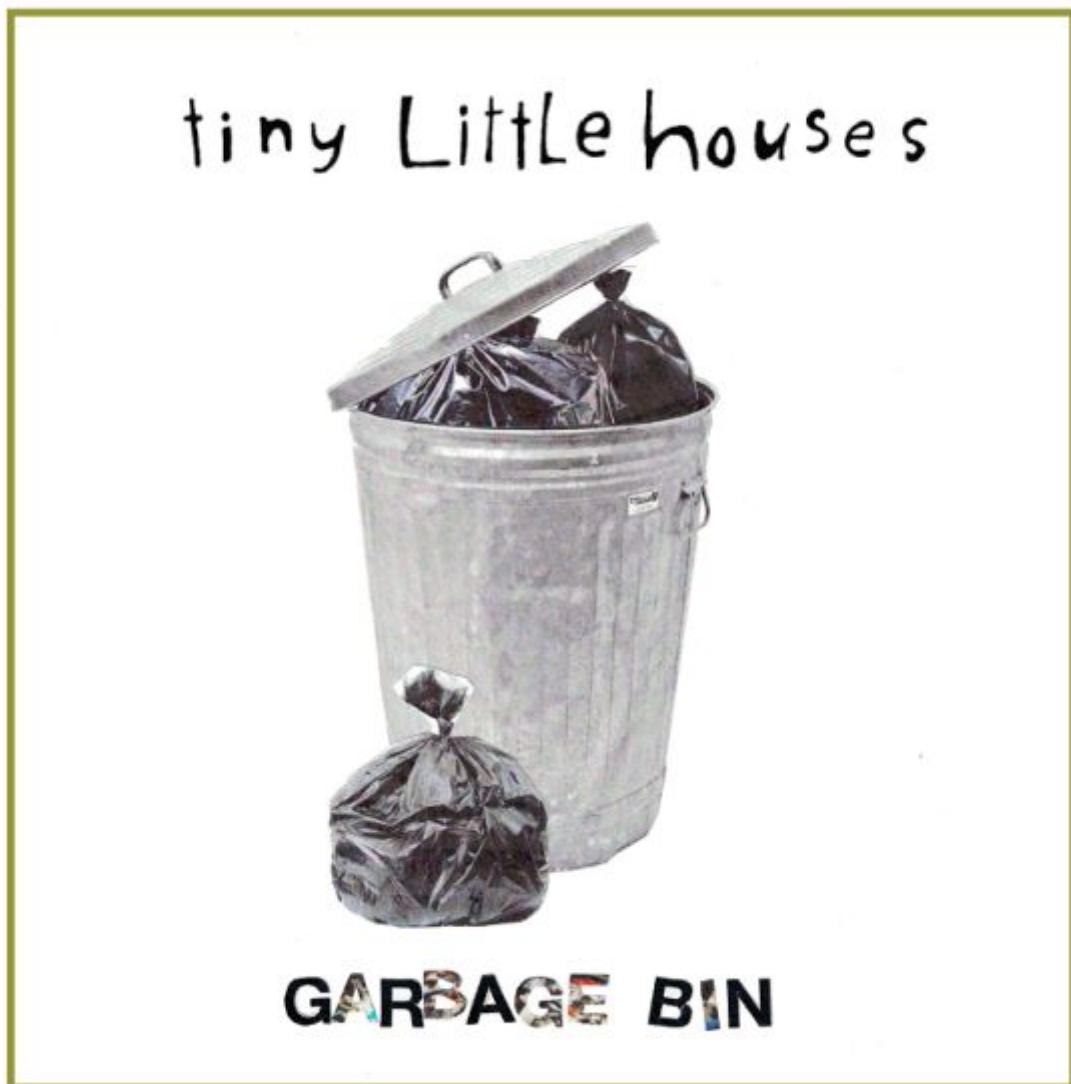

And I Don't Want To Learn Anything From This
I Love You.

16. Dune Rats - Braindead

Dune Rats' Sophomore LP is currently my most listened to album on Last.fm, with this song probably getting around 1/5th of the total plays. A simple yet banging song, this cut shows to be the highlight from the album and one of the best songs of the year.

15. Tiny Little Houses - Garbage Bin

Somewhat clever in its lyrics, and anthemic in its tune, Tiny Little Houses claim the #15 spot with the lead single from their upcoming album "Idiot Proverbs". The song is sarcastically hopeful at times, "at least the government will feed me if i'm taken by the cops", but ultimately is about considering yourself shit. My kinda jam.

14. Gang Of Youths - The Deepest Sighs, The Frankest Shadows

THE DEEPEST SIGHHS,

THE FRANKEST SHADOWS

In almost the exact opposite vein of garbage bin, Gang of youths' highlight from their 2nd LP was written during a time where their frontman was experiencing writer's block, and considering giving up music. Instead though, he wrote this, and it was definitely the right choice.

13. BROCKHAMPTON - GUMMY

BROCKHAMPTON's Saturation II hit me out of nowhere, but ended up being #6 on my list of best albums for 2017. The highlight and opening track "GUMMY" shows why. At times M.I.A influenced, the song is loud and in your face from the second the beat comes in, just like it should be.

12. Pnau - Go Bang

Especially recently, it's hard to tell what exactly Pnau songs are about. However, it is not hard to tell why i like this song. With a happy & banging club tune, and lyrics that are easy & fun to sing along to, it is near impossible for me to ever not like/dance along to this song.

11. Allday (feat. Japanese Wallpaper) - In Motion

IN MOTION

I have a theory that Japanese Wallpaper has the Midas Touch, and this song is strong evidence. Allday raps/sings about a relationship with a girl he had over beats produced by Japanese Wallpaper and the result is just....heavenly.

10. Circa Waves - Fire That Burns

According to steroboard.com Frontman Kieran Schudall said “Fire That Burns is a tale of two sides and how far someone will go to please another. It shows the darker side of passion”.

The tune reflects this, with passionate sounding vocals and instruments, Circa Waves opens the Top Ten With “Fire That Burns”.

9. Boo Seeka - Turn Up Your Light

BOO
SEEKA

Chill & dreamy, the highlight from Boo Seeka's Excellent debut album reaches #9 on my list. Simple yet beautiful, that's all i can/need to say.

8. Cigarettes After Sex - Sunsetz

CIGARETTES AFTER SEX

The first time i heard this song, both me and my now gf loved the fuck out of it, a song so simple, yet so beautiful (yes i know that's a cliche). Eventually we claimed it be our song now as a joke (the person who recommended it to me said it was his and his gf's song). Now I'm not too sure if we were joking.

7. Hockey Dad - Homely Feeling

HOCKEY DAD

HOMELY FEELING

I don't think there's been a time i've listened to this song and haven't sung along, including the first time i heard it.

I know i'm not the one, but they follow me with guns.

6. Cloud Nothings - Enter Entirely

Moving on but I still feel it

You're just a light in me now

This highlight from Cloud Nothing's "Life Without Sound" is a killer 5 minutes of angst alternative rock, and i love it. Lyrically it's probably a break-up song or something, truth is i don't really know. That definitely doesn't stop me from singing along like i know all the words though.

5. Tourist (feat. Ardyn) - We Stayed Up All Night

TOURIST

WE STAYED UP ALL NIGHT FEATURING ARDYN

“With this new music I wanted to make something that was more reflective of who I am now and how my life has changed over the past year. I think subconsciously I’ve started writing more joyous, colourful music and I’ve loved being more collaborative once again.” - What Tourist said about this track.

This song is so chill yet so danceable, and there’s not a moment of it i would want to replace.

4. Alt-J - Deadcrush

This song is everything to love about Alt-J. Lyrics about being in love with historical figures, a wildly experimental tune and perfect execution. This song is somehow haunting yet somehow not. It's pretty hard to explain, but just listen and you'll see why i put it as #4.

3. Brand New - Same Logic / Teeth

There are two things Jesse Lacey will be remembered for:

1. Sexually Harrassing/Assaulting Minors
2. Writing Fucking Good Songs

Thankfully this song about self-harm is only the good song portion of that. The song builds up to one of my favourite outros of the year and is the definite highlight of what is most likely Brand New's last album.

2. The Jungle Giants - Feel The Way I Do

The final cut from The Jungle Giant's amazing album comes in at #2. From the smooth production of this track to the banging drop, the song is banger the whole way through, and is the highlight off my #1 album of the year, and possibly even their whole discography.

1, Methyl Ethel - Ubu

#1 goes to a song/artist that hasn't been mentioned in any of the prior lists i've made, so might have flown under the radar for some of you. Methyl Ethel's Ubu is a weird track, with the outro being around 3/5ths of this track, and a constant "Why'd you have to go and cut you hair?" playing for almost the entirety of it. Yet, despite the weirdness, i love it. It's funky, it's new, it's unique and it's the best song i've heard this year. You're gonna have to listen to it though to see why.
